President's Message—Clif Upham

Well I hope everyone is enjoying a slight break in the heat and is looking forward to the fall temperatures and football season. You know it has been a hot summer when temperatures in the mid-nineties feel like a cold front is moving through. Last month was a great kick off to the year and I hope everyone was excited to hear about the numerous events we have planned for the year.

There has been a change to the date of our Fall Golf Tournament. We have moved it to the October 19th and we will now have the event at Waterchase Golf Club in Fort Worth. We are still looking for Tournament Sponsors so if you are interested please contact David Muzzy at d.muzzy@tcu.edu.

Next month we will be back at the Petroleum Club on September 16th with the topic of "Energy Efficient Laboratory Exhaust Design" by Ron Wendorski. I look forward to seeing you all there.

Best Regards,

Clif Upham

Grundfos Webinar: What Standard 90.1 Means to Plumbing Engineers

The 2010 edition of Standard 90.1 added several new energy efficiency requirements, and many Authorities Having Jurisdictions (AHJs) are beginning to use this version of the code. Plumbing engineers must understand these updates in order to correctly size and select pumping systems for service water applications. By understanding these new requirements, plumbing engineers will have the knowledge and expertise to specify pressure boosters into nonresidential buildings. Although presented with the plumbing engineer in mind, this webinar also will help plumbing and mechanical contractors, supply house employees and manufacturers learn more about ASHRAE Standard 90.1.
